Who We Are

Welcome to SFIG. On May 4th, 2009 Smithfield Foods, Farmland Foods, and John Morrell combined their International Sales departments to create the Smithfield Foods International Group referred to as SFIG.

Why was this done? Simple. To give our customers around the world the greatest purchasing opportunities that the three companies have to offer under one division called SFIG. We are a dedicated team serving multiple countries and markets. The combination of the three intercompany departments provides a stronger focus on product availability, distribution, and overall customer satisfaction. We will provide great products and service in order to meet our customers needs and form a partnership with them to achieve economic success.

How does SFIG plan to serve our customer? Healthy products are the biggest concern we face in the global market. SFIG will only provide the safest products available to our customers. We have 18 manufacturing plants all inspected by the USDA in addition to our own company Quality Assurance teams. We manufacture safe products that fit consumers from a range of tastes and needs. Our product list includes fresh pork cuts, processed meats, ready to eat items, and a wide range of variety meat products. We are continuously researching new products and adding value to existing ones.

How do you contact SFIG? Go to “www.smithfieldinternational.com” and click on the International tab at the top of the page.
